Translator of American History - English to Spanish

Project Title	Translator of American History - English to Spanish
Project Summary	Use your Spanish fluency to translate some of the National Archives most popular online content on American history. Help share America's past with Spanish speakers, by introducing famous documents and individuals, major events, social movements, and much more.
Country	United States

Project Description

We're looking for someone who is fluent in Spanish and English (professional proficiency), and has a love of American history. This project entails translating some of the most popular content on the National Archives website at archives.gov. This may include history lesson plans for teachers, exhibits, articles, and finding aids for researchers. Requires attention to detail and strong organizational skills. Interest in web design preferred. Should be a self-starter and self-motivated. Depending on your interests, there may also be opportunities to help enhance web page content by exploring the National Archives Catalog and archives.gov website in more depth.

Required Skills or Interests

Skill(s)
Cultural diplomacy
Editing and proofreading

Additional Information

You would be working with a member of the Web Program Staff, who will help you identify content for translation, based both on our needs and your interests. Selected interns will support each other, answering each other's questions as they come up, and reviewing each other's work, making suggestions as needed. You can find the current Spanish-language section on archives.gov here: https://www.archives.gov/espanol/Learn more about the mission and values of the National Archives here:

Language Requirements

Language Speaking Proficiency Reading Proficiency Importance

Spanish Native or bilingual proficiency Native or bilingual proficiency Nice to Have